About Crump Ranch

Ed Stabb, the owner and operator of Crump Ranch, started ranching in Redmond 25 years ago on a piece of property that was homesteaded in 1888. Ed is a trained engineer but has always had a passion for the outdoors and decided to dedicate his life to ranching. He started with growing hay and then transitioned into raising beef; now he runs a medium sized Angus calf and cattle operation, Ed truly enjoys inviting families out to the ranch to learn where their meat comes from.

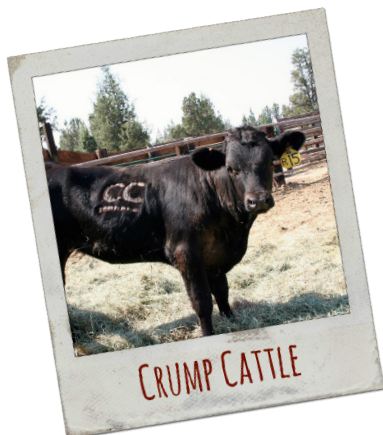

"It can be a very fulfilling lifestyle choice."

Why ranch?

"If you like the outdoors then farming and ranching is a pretty good vocation. I like to encourage young people to get involved."

Words of wisdom?

"Farming and ranching can be very capital intensive. Think about leasing or share cropping land to get your feet in the door. You've got to start small."
