About Dome Grown Produce

Amanda Benkert's earliest memories were in the garden. "If Mom couldn't find me she would come into the garden to find me with a mouthful of cherry tomatoes!" Amanda started growing 10 years ago while working at a garden center. Now she has 3 acres under cultivation with 17 additional acres for expansion. Amanda has numerous rows of vegetables, an active chicken coop and "The Dome", which provides a structurally strong season extender. If you stop by Dome Grown you will find Amanda, an incredibly knowledgeable, easy to talk to woman with a great sense of humor.

"Don't give up and have patience."

What makes you proud?

"Being able to provide good safe food that can be eaten out of the ground."

Do you have kids that work on the farm?

"Yes, he's too young at the moment but loves being out in the dirt. If I'd known I was going to be a farmer, I would have had 5 kids 15 years ago," she says with a laugh.
