About T-Bone Hay & Cattle

Tom and Marilyn Kasch are seasoned Central Oregon ranchers raising grass-fed Angus beef on their 200-acre ranch. Marilyn grew up spending summers at her grandparent's ranch in Montana, which sparked her love for the outdoors and raising animals. She moved to Portland and became an art teacher where she met her husband, Tom. In 2000, they moved here to raise cattle and now sell calves as well as quarter, half and whole.

"You have to take care of the animals first."

Why ranch?

"It's a lifestyle to be able to work for yourself. I couldn't live in the city, the further out we could get into the country the better."

Do your children help on the farm?

"Our son helps a lot. It's a good place to raise kids and grand kids. It gives you more time with them in a way. They learn to do chores and it teaches responsibility."
