About Piggyback Ranch

Hilary and Greg Smith have been raising animals on their farm since 2010. The Smiths love their pigs' distinct personalities and the incredible pork products. They raise a variety of heritage breeds: Berkshire/Tamworths, Gloucestershire Old Spot, Large Blacks, and a very rare breed, Mule-foot. These Heritage hogs, along with their other animals, are the perfect combination to provide aeration, soil enhancement and fertilization that is needed to keep the pastures rich in nutrients and free of chemically-based pesticides.

"Grass makes everything better."

Where did it begin?

"We used to have chestnut trees on our farm and one day a farmer called to ask if we had any chestnuts for their pigs. The idea (or seed) was planted and that day we had pigs riding in the back of the truck on the way home with us."

Why pasture raised?

"Pasture raised pork delivers nutrient dense meat and has higher levels of essential amino acids and vitamins. A blend of sunlight, clean air and a diversified diet allows the animal to thrive in its natural environment."
