About Splitting Aces Livestock

Remmington is no stranger to herding cattle and loves the hard work that comes with taking care of livestock. After he graduated from OSU with a degree in Agricultural Science, he moved to Sisters with his partner Jenna, a Central Oregon native. Together, with her background in catering, they created the perfect duo of raising, processing and preparing beef, pork and more. Their mission is to raise quality, easy going cattle and take pride in producing a product raised with intention.

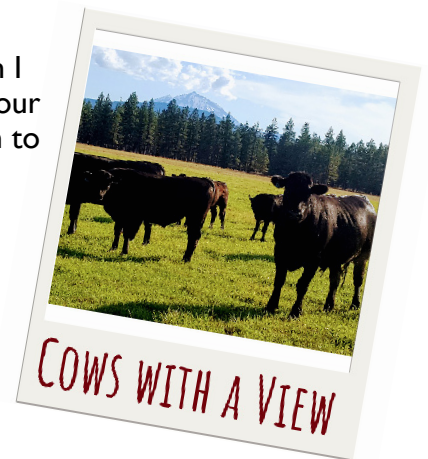

"At the end of the day, it's rewarding."

What drives you?

"I know the respect I gave the animal. It is giving me the best quality meat and in return I need to give it the best quality life. We hold our heads up high knowing we take care of them to the best of our abilities."

Is farming in your family?

"Remmington doesn't come from a ranching family but fell into it in 2003. You can see the relationship between the cows and Remmington when we're taking care of them."
